INTRODUCTION

IT WAS on the Fourth of July, 1873, that Henry Stevens, "Green Mountain Boy" transplanted to London, published what he called "American Books with Tails to 'em", a list of American periodicals and serials that had gone through his hands. Speaking "To the Inquisitive and Pertinent Reader" he pointed out that this "most important department" was full of "bibliographical puzzles", admitted that "the imperfections and shortcomings of this index are pre-supposed and allowed for", and closed by saying he felt it "almost insurmountable" to complete and define the field or the subject.

In the sixty years and more that have slipped by others have followed Stevens' footsteps, disagreeing doubtless on various points, but agreeing heartily as to his definition of the problem, the difficulty of being accurate, comprehensive, satisfactory while working with such things. Periodicals certainly have tails to them, elusive, slippery, now and then with a sting, seldom quiet or still, normally difficult to grasp or to pin down.

The "World List of Scientific Periodicals" appeared in London in 1925, a mammoth and comprehensive record of 24,000 titles received by British libraries, a title record, with no subject arrangement. Ayer and Greenly and Willing and Sperling and Sijthoff and the French "Annuaire" all come to mind as national and international lists, but in most of them the newspaper side is predominant, rather than the subject arrangement of periodicals as distinguished from newspapers. Miss Ulrich's list made its bow in 1932, a first aid kit rather than a warehouse stock list. Call for a second edition in less than three years speaks in no uncertain way as to the need the book has met. Some 2,500 new titles are noted in the second edition. No essential change has been made in the arrangement or in the principles of inclusion. The list still remains an international grouping by subjects, with an index of titles. It still is selective, rather than all-inclusive; still is world wide in scope; still is the bridge for the mass of print between the daily newspaper and the trade books; still is a reference tool of necessity for every one seeking where he can best turn to final sources of knowledge.

HARRY M. LYDENBERG,
Director, New York Public Library.

August 1935

INTRODUCTION TO THE THIRD EDITION

Perhaps it is not safe to say that a three year period has been established for the Periodicals Directory, but the signals certainly seem set for such a course. Issued first in 1932, revised in 1935, the third edition rolls out in 1938.

The book's place, significance, opportunity stand today as they did when the "Introduction" for the second edition was written three years ago. Its appreciation is shown by its fate. The periodical press is surely slated to play an increasing part in the world of books. The need of a guide grows in geometrical as the tribe itself increases in numerical progression.

PREFACE

THE directory of current periodicals, both foreign and domestic, is planned for those interested in business and industry as well as for librarians, not only as a tool for reference but also as an aid in the selection of titles for purchase.

The list does not aim to be exhaustive. No attempt at evaluation has been made, but the 10,200 titles represent the periodicals published in the United States and foreign countries, especially in England, France and Germany, which have been found most useful in American collections. Occasionally titles which seem to have limited or ephemeral value are listed, their inclusion being justified by their specialized interest.

The arrangement is alphabetical by subject. The periodicals are grouped according to a broad classification under which minor subjects and special characteristics are brought out in italics. The entries include title and subtitle, supplements, date of origin, frequency, price, size, publisher, place of publication and indication of indexing services as well as such items as abstracts, bibliographies and book reviews, a complete list of which is given on page xi. The price, whenever possible, is given in the currency of the country wherein the periodical is published.

In this edition more attention is given to analytical entries, a field which it is hoped will be even more fully developed in succeeding editions. Also the number of indexing services indicated is increased. It should be borne in mind that certain indexing and abstracting journals index and abstract from a periodical only the material of interest in their particular field.

Adelaide C. Cutter, New York Public Library, again has revised the bibliographies and regarding their scope and arrangement is quoted:

"Five hundred odd bibliographical items are listed, about two hundred of which are newly included, replacing a nearly equal number, included in the 1935 edition, but omitted from the present volume. The general purpose has been to group together for each subject as much assistance as is available for the use of the current periodicals listed in those subjects, i.e. (1) any important lists that would augment the present listing, (2) any indexes that would be a key to the material in the present listing, (3) any handbooks or articles that would explain the use or value of the periodicals and (4) any sources for keeping the present listing up-to-date. It should be noted that where few or no bibliographies are given for a specific subject, it is well to consult a broader, allied subject. Ex: There is only one item under Advertising but several of the bibliographies under Business include material pertinent to advertising."

The editor is greatly indebted to the administration of the New York Public Library for permission to use material and records from the various divisions; to the American Institute of Accountants, American Museum of Natural History, Horticultural Society of New York, Insurance Society of New York, Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York Academy of Medicine, New York Bar Association and Teachers College, Columbia University, for the opportunity to consult freely their collections.

PREFACE

A debt of gratitude is due the staff of the Periodicals Division of the New York Public Library for their generous co-operation and special acknowledgment is given to Leonora K. V. Holsclaw for assistance in the work of the revision.
